Serving a Growing University Since 1920

Volume 51, No. 59

IT JUST doesn't pay to try and hurry when you're late for class in weather like the University has been blessed with recently. Dianne Dixon, senior in the College of Education, slowly looks around as she collects her scattered books to see who saw her slip on an icy patch of a campus sidewalk, an occurrence that has happened to several University students recently. Council Bookstore Idea Fails To Sell

Efforts to start a cooperative bookstore on campus this year have failed, but one of the driving forces behind the project is optimistic that they will succeed eventually.

Kenneth B. Barclay, senior class president and chairman of the Student Council's bookstore committee, sponsoring the project, said yesterday the idea was a failure because there were only 94 responses--less than one per cent of the student body--to the bookstore.

"We needed a much greater response to make our idea work," Barclay said. "We were simply going to exchange books among those responding, but there weren't enough to match the books needed with the books available."

Several other factors also contributed to the failure of the bookstore, Barclay said.

One was lack of time and another was the lack of a central location.

"We began too late in the semester and students didn't have enough advance notice about it. Because of final exams, many of them forgot about it," he said.

Another factor was that the committee could not secure a central location to set up an information table, said Barclay. Instead, information was issued by telephone and through the campus mail.

The University Union would not let the council set up a table there, Barclay said.

This and other examples of lack of cooperation on the part of the University administration were factors in the failure of the cooperative bookstore, he believes.

For the future, Barclay sees success for such a venture "if the students really want it."

"I feel if the University can see a workable plan, they will be more than happy to support it."

Barclay had two suggestions for managing the system next year.

The first is to break-down the campus into geographical areas such as by dormitories. The residents in each area would exchange books among themselves.

When this plan became successful, it could then be expanded to include the whole campus.

The second idea is to sell shares in the bookstore for $1 per share. The money (hopefully $5-6,000) will be used to purchase new books. This would enable the bookstore to sell new books at a price slightly above cost in order to cover handling, but it would be a non-profit operation.

With the second plan, there would also be the possibility of renting a place where books could be stored. The bookstore could then stay open longer.

No matter what is done, Barclay said, it will take two or three years before the bookstore is a success.

Kansas Teacher Guiding Education Graduate Studies

Dr. William J. York has been appointed director of graduate studies in Bowling Green University's College of Education. President William T. Jerome III announced last week.

Dr. York, who also will hold the rank of associate professor of education, comes to Bowling Green from the University of Kansas, where he was a teacher and chairman of the University's educational administration program committee.

Dr. York replaces Dr. Wesley A. Erbe who joined the University of Iowa staff as director of the university schools and professor of education.

At Bowling Green, Dr. York will be responsible for coordinating the existing graduate programs in education as well as those expected to be added, including a new doctoral degree in educational administration.

A graduate of Iowa State Teachers College, Dr. York received his doctorate in 1958 from Teachers College of Columbia University. While at Columbia, he was a project assistant in the cooperative center for educational administration.

Widely experienced in public education, Dr. York was a high school teacher in Hampton, Iowa, and was an administrator in the Tenafly, N.J., public school system. He has been at the University of Kansas since 1958 advising doctoral candidates in educational administration.

His professional memberships have included the Kansas Advisory Council to Education, the Kansas Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards, and the Research Committee of the Kansas Association of School Administrators, which he has served as secretary.

He also has been consultant to the Kansas Regional Association of School Boards and the Finance Committee of the Kansas Association of School Boards. Finance in the field of educational administration has been his principle research specialization and he has published numerous articles on the subject.

Fraternity Spring Rush Registration Starts Today

By JAMES TREEGER
Issue Editor

Registration for second semester fraternity rush is scheduled from 2 to 5 p.m. today through Friday in the mezzanine lounge of Rodgers Quadrangle.

To be eligible for rush a student must have a 2.0 accumulative point average and a 2.0 from the previous semester. Students unsure of their averages may check them at registration.

Any student who has completed only summer school and not any other semester hours will be ineligible for rush this semester.

Transfer and branch students who have not attended a full semester on the Bowling Green campus are also ineligible.

First parties will begin Sunday with nine, 30-minute parties. Houses which will be visited the first night include: Phi Kappa Tau, Beta Theta Pi, Delta Tau Delta, Zeta Beta Tau, Kappa Sigma, Alpha Sigma Phi, Phi Delta Theta, Pi Kappa Alpha and Delta Upsilon.

First parties will continue Monday night with the following fraternities participating: Theta Chi, Phi Kappa Psi, Alpha Phi Alpha, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Alpha Tau Omega, Tau Kappa Epsilon, and Sigma Nu.

After first parties Sunday and Monday, all rushees will register in the Ohio Suite for individual parties from 2 to 5 p.m. on the same day that the next party is being held, starting Thursday, February 16. Representatives from each fraternity will sign up the rushees for their parties.

Parties will resume Thursday with six to eight 30 minute parties at all houses. There will be four to five 45 minute parties on Monday, Feb. 20, two to four 45 minute parties Wednesday, Feb. 22, and one to two 90 minute parties Friday, Feb. 24.

Rushees may pick up final bids on Saturday, Feb. 25 from 10 to 12 a.m. in the Interfraternity Council Office in Conklin Hall.

The registration fee for both formal (closed) and informal (open) rush will be $2.50 and must be paid at registration.

Area Colleges To Give Selective Service Test

All male students who did not take the Selective Service College Qualification Test (SSCQT) last spring will have a chance to do so this March and April.

The test will not be given on campus because Educational Testing Service officials do not feel there will be a sufficient number of applicants. But the test will be given in the area at Toledo University and Defiance and Findlay Colleges.

Students can obtain applications for the test at the Registrar's window in the Administration building.

These applications must be postmarked no later than Friday, Feb. 10, and sent to the Selective Service Testing Center in New Jersey.

Testing dates will be Saturday, March 11; Friday, March 31; and Saturday, April 8.

To be eligible to take the test, the student must be a Selective Service registrant intending to request occupational deferment as a student, and he must not have taken the test previously.

The test assumes no schooling beyond the high school preparation for college. Test scores will not themselves determine eligibility for deferment.

They will be used along with the student's class standing to provide the local draft board with additional information to determine whether the student is eligible for a college deferment.

Although participation in the test is voluntary, the student is urged by the Chief of the Manpower Division of the Ohio Selective Service System to take the test.

The student is also urged to file his application early so as to be assured of the test center of his choice.

Class Drop, Add Dates Outlined

The final day for adding classes is Friday, Feb. 10, while the deadline for dropping classes is Monday, Feb. 27, the Registrar's office announced yesterday.

Also given as the deadline for applying for graduation was Saturday, Feb. 11. However, late applications will be accepted after this date. Applications may be picked up in Room 110 Administration Bldg.

News Plan In Review

Today we review the 10 point News Plan for campus betterment which we presented early first semester. We have seen real progress in about half of our proposals and little or no progress in the other half.

First, our call for a revamped political system has been heeded with "at least two strong parties" near fruition and primary elections replacing Senior Nominating Committee.

Our second point was a plea for a democratic election process. Advances have been made in voting procedures with voting cards and polling places by geographical area and in giving more students the opportunity to seek office by dropping the grade requirement.

Enlarged campaign privileges was our third point. Progress has been made with more forums and debates and, due to the institution of primary elections, extended campaign time and larger expense allowances.

Point four, a call for an open campus atmosphere, is still far from fruition. Although there has been more of an opportunity to speak out through forums and the like, it is not yet "in" to speak out or is there a regularly available open forum from which to speak.

The barriers between students and faculty are generally in tact despite point five. Social and academic contact has not been increased and a true mutual evaluation is far from a reality. The greater exchange of representation and information between Student Council and Faculty Senate has been an encouraging development, however.

Our sixth point is one in which great improvement has been made -- the responsiveness of student government to the student body. Student Council has been concentrating on student problems and actively promoting student causes more than ever before. It has made an information line available. There is, however, a major need for greater contact between Council members and the constituency they represent.

Point seven, a call for improved campus communication, has gone unheeded. There has been no promotion of greater usage of campus radio and television facilities and no investigation into the possibilities of a closed circuit campus radio station like other major universities.

Neither has there been increased mutual understanding and respect between all students, point eight. The two difficulty areas are Greek-Independent and freshman-upperclassman.

Point nine, calling for a fast acting student government, has seen weekly Student Council meetings, rapid action on timely topics and, in the future, a new streamlined constitution.

Our final point has gone for naught. There has been no publicized move to bring in a corps of professional curricula advisors to replace the already overburdened professors.

In the near future we will present our amended News Plan for campus betterment for second semester.

We Want More Guests

In the category of less than successful projects first semester was our guest column. We had hoped to print the works of faculty, administration and university-connected individuals on a weekly basis.

Though our recruitment efforts were less than the best, the response of the people we contacted was less than encouraging. However, we plan another go at it this semester.

We ask all faculty, administration and university-connected individuals who would like to write a 300 to 500 word article for publication on the editorial page to drop us a note in the campus mail.

Once we know you are interested, we will contact you and make arrangements for your publication date.

The 'Atmosphere' Joint

By FREDERICK W. ZACKEL
Columnist

Directly opposite Kent State University's main gate at South Lincoln and Route 5 is a hamburger joint called Captain Brady's.

Directly opposite Bowling Green State University's eastern entrance at Yount Road and Rout 6 is the White Hut restaurant.

And this is where the similarity ends. Captain Brady's is a smoke-filled meeting place for KSU students. Coffee is 10 cents a cup; refills five cents more. The booths are battleship grey, plywood cords. The service is non-existent, the atmosphere nauseous, and the food questionable.

The White Hut is a well-ventilated eating place for the university students, a spanking new glass and aluminum marvel. The front door is decorated with fraternity and sorority decals, while photos of the basketball team adorn the walls. The curtains are paisley swirled, the tables are color coordinated, and a hamburger is cooked every minute. The food is digestible.

Students congregate at Brady's, queuing up to grab tables, to sit around, to smoke, to drink coffee, and to talk. Students here queue up at the White Hut to grab a bite to eat, then it's back to their rooms to sleep, to study, or to play table tennis. The White Hut is another in a series of utilitarian facilities in Bowling Green, Ohio, that are designed for maximum efficiency and rapid turnover with a relative low cost and few problems. Somewhere along the way, any possibility of the interchange of ideas among students is stifled.

There isn't even a place on or off campus where a person can spend (even "waste") several hours without spending money. Let's review the situation.

True, the Union is the best place to "congregate", but only a very small proportion of the student body can even enter it between classes. The Rat is never open, and when it is, the noise from the juke box drowns out talking.

The dormitory cafeterias as well as the off-campus facilities, want the quick and efficient. Your table is cleared off before you start to eat. Burger Chef is the same as the White Hut; people go there to "eat," not "meet."

Now the Falcon Pizza Parlor is a bit different. It does provide a lot of table space, if you get there before the tables are gone, and it is possible to have a quiet talk there, as long as social courtesies stop others from listening.

Within the dorms, there are, of course, many opportunities for "bull sessions" and the like, provided you don't have arguments and raise your voices. You really can learn things in the dorm bull sessions, especially concerning the sexual mores of the opposite sex on the BG campus.

But, alas and alack, where is there, here in Bowling Green, where people of both sexes can get together comfortably, guzzle coffee, smoke till lung cancer sets in, and just talk? Where can a guy and a girl get together, talk for an hour or so, and not be bothered by anxious cafeteria workers?

It came as a complete shock to me that our new "Student" Services Building does not include space allotments for a new Falcon's Nest. This would be the perfect place for BG students to meet. Four and a half thousand students live on that side of the campus, the new bookstore is there, as well as all the student activities offices. The deans have their offices out there and the faculty have two parking lots right next to it. The nearest two contenders for students, faculty, and administrators are the White Hut and the original Nest. What a combination!

(It might have come as a surprise that I include the faculty and the administration as participants in this search for relaxation and conversation, but, it is a fact that there are many distinguished members of the school who would like to converse with students, if they had an opportunity outside of class. Just because the number of faculty members and administrative staff seen in the Union can be numerated on one hand doesn't mean men like this don't exist. It just means that you don't see them because they get crowded out.)

Who knows? Maybe someday we all might meet on common ground and drink coffee together.

Universal Service: Price For Benefits

The United States is now engaged in an undeclared war in Viet Nam. Even though this war is thousands of miles away, it affects every citizen in American.

But what effect does it have on the college male? This is a very interesting question because it will bring a variety of answers depending upon the person's point of view. One will find that the main word that will be associated with any type of answer is "The DRAFT."

To a ROTC student the draft is not important because he has already signed his name on the dotted line.

But what does it mean to the student who is 2-S? To most it means being drafted upon graduation but, maybe it doesn't. Each day hundreds of men are being called in to take their physicals.

These physicals are very important as they classify the student as to whether he is fit for military service or not. These physicals are conducted by competent doctors and are very thorough; or are they?

Sitting in the "Nest" you can hear examples of men bragging on how they got deferred because of medical reasons. These people are over-joyed in their accomplishments of being able to fool the doctors into thinking that they are not qualified for military service.

You can hear excuses from trick knees to being over weight. Do you think that it is fair that these individuals are able to get deferred when hundreds of Americans are giving their lives each week so we can live in a free democracy?

It is not fair for one person to be drafted and to serve his military duty while someone else is able to "Beat the Draft" and go to work after graduation.

I'm sure in 1917 we didn't find our grandfathers thinking of ways to get out of going to Europe; and again in 1941 and 1950 our fathers were ready to serve their country for what they believe in.

But now, there is a different attitude present when it comes to serving your military duty. You hear more and more of "let the other man go, why should I have to be drafted?"

Some use the excuse that they are against war and that because of this they should not have to fight for something that they do not believe in. I think that it should be understood that no one likes war and death.

Those over in Viet Nam would rather be back home instead of fighting but they know that there is a job to be done and that someone has to do it.

If we don't stop the communist advancement in South East Asia we might find ourselves fighting them in New York, California or yes, even Bowling Green.

I think that it is up to every male, let me repeat, EVERY MALE to serve his country in the military. Everyone is willing to reap the benefits that our country can give but many are not willing to pay for them. This doesn't mean that everyone should go and fight. There are many jobs in the service that do not require fighting.

There is no question that our draft system in the United States needs to be revamped.

When you find everyone doing their part to defend what they believe in, then I would say we truly live in a country where everyone is "created equal."

Former Area Artist's Work In Toledo Exhibit

Paintings by Joseph DeLuca, an assistant professor of art at Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, and a former art instructor in the Findlay public school system, will be on exhibit at the Toledo Museum of Art from Sunday, Feb. 12 through March 5 in Gallery 8.

A graduate of Bowling Green and Michigan State Universities, Mr. DeLuca has won several awards for works entered in various area exhibits. His paintings have been on display at numerous colleges and galleries throughout Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Debaters Tour 3 States, Average .720 For Season

Bowling Green debaters won 50 percent of their debates in three tournaments over the semester break.

Most successful of the teams was the switch-side women's team of Holly Herwick, sophomore, and Roslyn Weedman, freshman. Competing at the 20th Annual Eastern Illinois University Invitational Debate Tournament, they advanced into the semi-final round before losing to the University of Illinois.

The girls won four of six preliminary debates and were the eighth-seeded in the quarter-finals, where they defeated the top-seeded team in the junior division.

Also attending the tournament were: Charles Collins, Nancy Ruda, Robert Michalski and Ken Bailey, all freshmen entered in the varsity division, and James Crawford and Greg Varley, who teamed with Herwick and Weedman in the junior varsity division.

In individual events at the EIU tournament, Bailey and Michalski advanced into the finals in extemporaneous speaking. The topic for that event was "The Effect of Domestic Policy."

At the Northern Ohio Forensic Conference Unit-Varsity Debate Tournament held at Kent State

University, Bowling Green tied with two other schools with a 4-2 record. However, Kent State University won the first place trophy with 241 speaker points. Hiram was second with 236 and BGSU was third with 235 speaker points.

On the east coast, the varsity team of David Klumpp and Greg Gardner debated in the Harvard University Invitational Debate Tournament. After sightseeing in Boston, the team won three of eight debates, losing to Northwestern University, last year's national champion.

The debate team has compiled a winning record of 85 wins in 118 rounds of debate.

Sophs Planning Ski Weekend In Michigan

The Sophomore Class ski trip is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 18. Departure time is to be 8:30 a.m. and the skiers are to return at 10:30 p.m.

The trip this year will be to Irish Hills Sports Park in Michigan. If weather permits, tobogganing will be offered with the skiing.

Cost for rope tow and ski rental will be $8. A $5 deposit will be required when registering for the trip and it will be returned when the bus leaves.

Registration for the trip will be handled at a table in the Union 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. on Thursday and Friday. Only a limited number of students can be accommodated.

Library Rumor False, Plan Easter Removal

The rumor that the library has already begun packaging and storing books in preparation for the move to its new building in March is not true.

The denial was made by Dr. A. Robert Rogers, director of the University library, after being questioned by several members of the faculty about the matter.

NET Film Shows Church Racial Strife

A National Educational Television Film, "A Time for Burning," will be shown this Sunday at 3 and 7:30 p.m. in 105 Hanna Hall.

The film is recorded on the scene as it happened and relates a four month series of events in which a Lutheran Congregation in Omaha faced the question of fellowship with their Negro neighbors.

William Youngdahl, a pastor of an all-white church in Omaha, encouraged his congregation to go out and meet the members of the neighborhood Negro churches.

Pastor Youngdahl was later "kicked out" of his church by the members of his congregation who felt that the move to meet their Negro neighbors was "too big a step."

The film is being presented by the Lutheran Student Association and Gamma Delta. Discussion will follow both of the showings. Dr. Joseph Nordstrom, visiting associate professor in the department of business administration, and Mr. Trevor Phillips, assistant professor in the education department, will lead the afternoon discussion. Dr. Raymond Endres, in the education department, and Dr. Henry Gerner of United Christian Fellowship will conduct the evening discussion.

All books will be transferred on the three days preceding Easter vacation, and not before, Dr. Rogers said. He explained that the transfer will consist of taking the books off the shelves in the present library, packing them in the beer cases, carting them over to the new building and reshelving them.

Until that time all books will be able to be checked out under the usual procedure, Dr. Rogers stated.

According to a library assistant, the rumor might have started because quite a number of books have come up missing. "People seem to be 'borrowing' a lot of books out of the stacks and forgetting to check them out," the assistant said.

Another cause of the rumor might be the library's storage books, says Miss Evron S. Collins, head of the library circulation service. Very old books and periodicals are kept in special storage rooms, Miss Collins said.

This does not mean that a student cannot check out a storage book, but that it can only be done at a certain time of the day.

"When we have to tell a person that a book is in storage and that he will have to pick it up later, he might think that it is being stored for the move," Miss Collins said.

To a ROTC student the draft is not important because he has already signed his name on the dotted line.

But what does it mean to the student who is 2-S? To most it means being drafted upon graduation but, maybe it doesn't. Each day hundreds of men are being called in to take their physicals.

These physicals are very important as they classify the student as to whether he is fit for military service or not. These physicals are conducted by competent doctors and are very thorough; or are they?

Sitting in the "Nest" you can hear examples of men bragging on how they got deferred because of medical reasons. These people are over-joyed in their accomplishments of being able to fool the doctors into thinking that they are not qualified for military service.

You can hear excuses from trick knees to being over weight. Do you think that it is fair that these individuals are able to get deferred when hundreds of Americans are giving their lives each week so we can live in a free democracy?

It is not fair for one person to be drafted and to serve his military duty while someone else is able to "Beat the Draft" and go to work after graduation.

I'm sure in 1917 we didn't find our grandfathers thinking of ways to get out of going to Europe; and again in 1941 and 1950 our fathers were ready to serve their country for what they believe in.

But now, there is a different attitude present when it comes to serving your military duty. You hear more and more of "let the other man go, why should I have to be drafted?"

Some use the excuse that they are against war and that because of this they should not have to fight for something that they do not believe in. I think that it should be understood that no one likes war and death.

Those over in Viet Nam would rather be back home instead of fighting but they know that there is a job to be done and that someone has to do it.

If we don't stop the communist advancement in South East Asia we might find ourselves fighting them in New York, California or yes, even Bowling Green.

I think that it is up to every male, let me repeat, EVERY MALE to serve his country in the military. Everyone is willing to reap the benefits that our country can give but many are not willing to pay for them. This doesn't mean that everyone should go and fight. There are many jobs in the service that do not require fighting.

There is no question that our draft system in the United States needs to be revamped.

When you find everyone doing their part to defend what they believe in, then I would say we truly live in a country where everyone is "created equal."

Former Area Artist's Work In Toledo Exhibit

Paintings by Joseph DeLuca, an assistant professor of art at Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, and a former art instructor in the Findlay public school system, will be on exhibit at the Toledo Museum of Art from Sunday, Feb. 12 through March 5 in Gallery 8.

A graduate of Bowling Green and Michigan State Universities, Mr. DeLuca has won several awards for works entered in various area exhibits. His paintings have been on display at numerous colleges and galleries throughout Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Debaters Tour 3 States, Average .720 For Season

Bowling Green debaters won 50 percent of their debates in three tournaments over the semester break.

Most successful of the teams was the switch-side women's team of Holly Herwick, sophomore, and Roslyn Weedman, freshman. Competing at the 20th Annual Eastern Illinois University Invitational Debate Tournament, they advanced into the semi-final round before losing to the University of Illinois.

The girls won four of six preliminary debates and were the eighth-seeded in the quarter-finals, where they defeated the top-seeded team in the junior division.

Also attending the tournament were: Charles Collins, Nancy Ruda, Robert Michalski and Ken Bailey, all freshmen entered in the varsity division, and James Crawford and Greg Varley, who teamed with Herwick and Weedman in the junior varsity division.

In individual events at the EIU tournament, Bailey and Michalski advanced into the finals in extemporaneous speaking. The topic for that event was "The Effect of Domestic Policy."

At the Northern Ohio Forensic Conference Unit-Varsity Debate Tournament held at Kent State

University, Bowling Green tied with two other schools with a 4-2 record. However, Kent State University won the first place trophy with 241 speaker points. Hiram was second with 236 and BGSU was third with 235 speaker points.

On the east coast, the varsity team of David Klumpp and Greg Gardner debated in the Harvard University Invitational Debate Tournament. After sightseeing in Boston, the team won three of eight debates, losing to Northwestern University, last year's national champion.

The debate team has compiled a winning record of 85 wins in 118 rounds of debate.

Sophs Planning Ski Weekend In Michigan

The Sophomore Class ski trip is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 18. Departure time is to be 8:30 a.m. and the skiers are to return at 10:30 p.m.

The trip this year will be to Irish Hills Sports Park in Michigan. If weather permits, tobogganing will be offered with the skiing.

Cost for rope tow and ski rental will be $8. A $5 deposit will be required when registering for the trip and it will be returned when the bus leaves.

Registration for the trip will be handled at a table in the Union 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. on Thursday and Friday. Only a limited number of students can be accommodated.

Library Rumor False, Plan Easter Removal

The rumor that the library has already begun packaging and storing books in preparation for the move to its new building in March is not true.

The denial was made by Dr. A. Robert Rogers, director of the University library, after being questioned by several members of the faculty about the matter.

NET Film Shows Church Racial Strife

A National Educational Television Film, "A Time for Burning," will be shown this Sunday at 3 and 7:30 p.m. in 105 Hanna Hall.

The film is recorded on the scene as it happened and relates a four month series of events in which a Lutheran Congregation in Omaha faced the question of fellowship with their Negro neighbors.

William Youngdahl, a pastor of an all-white church in Omaha, encouraged his congregation to go out and meet the members of the neighborhood Negro churches.

Pastor Youngdahl was later "kicked out" of his church by the members of his congregation who felt that the move to meet their Negro neighbors was "too big a step."

The film is being presented by the Lutheran Student Association and Gamma Delta. Discussion will follow both of the showings. Dr. Joseph Nordstrom, visiting associate professor in the department of business administration, and Mr. Trevor Phillips, assistant professor in the education department, will lead the afternoon discussion. Dr. Raymond Endres, in the education department, and Dr. Henry Gerner of United Christian Fellowship will conduct the evening discussion.

All books will be transferred on the three days preceding Easter vacation, and not before, Dr. Rogers said. He explained that the transfer will consist of taking the books off the shelves in the present library, packing them in the beer cases, carting them over to the new building and reshelving them.

Until that time all books will be able to be checked out under the usual procedure, Dr. Rogers stated.

According to a library assistant, the rumor might have started because quite a number of books have come up missing. "People seem to be 'borrowing' a lot of books out of the stacks and forgetting to check them out," the assistant said.

Another cause of the rumor might be the library's storage books, says Miss Evron S. Collins, head of the library circulation service. Very old books and periodicals are kept in special storage rooms, Miss Collins said.

This does not mean that a student cannot check out a storage book, but that it can only be done at a certain time of the day.

"When we have to tell a person that a book is in storage and that he will have to pick it up later, he might think that it is being stored for the move," Miss Collins said.

It's Book Time Again

IT'S THAT season again when the books are blooming.

It's a new semester of new courses with new professors who require plenty of new books, books, books...

The season lasts only a few days, but that's time enough to catch the seasonal ailments.

Students probably have experienced the crick in the neck caused by craning at books stacked to the ceiling. There's also those sore muscles that only bagfuls of 10 pound volumes can cause.

What really hurts though is that simple pain in the purse.

Carol McCutcheon, junior in the College of Education, (above) and Kay Garrett, senior in the College of Liberal Arts (right) seem to have the symptoms.

Everyone is susceptible--even Associate Professor of HPE Dr. James E. Odenkirk's son Jimmy has succumbed. We aren't certain which class requires the "ABC's," however.

Yet once the books are bought, it's back to the room to curl up with a nice good reader between the toes...

The Royal Green in drill formation.

Some Snags Occur

Royal Green Gets The Point

By VICKI WOLFE
Staff Writer

There's always certain hardships to any job. But for those who join Royal Green, the women's cadet corps sponsored by the Army ROTC, there is rather a unique problem. The members have to buy more nylons than the normal women.

You see the Royal Green are a precision drill team that march along twirling rather sharply-pointed sabers.

"And we just keep snagging our nylons on them," explained Judy A. Kustra, junior in the College of Liberal Arts and a Royal Green member.

"The saber's blade isn't sharp, but the point is."

"The Royal Green is one of the few groups in the nation to combine precision drill and intricate movements with sabers," explained Capt. Mervyn L. Burdge, assistant professor of military science and Royal Green adviser.

It was organized two years ago by the cadre staff to provide services and booster spirit in the cadet corp. Women in the Royal Green serve as hostesses for ROTC social functions, usher at football and basketball games and march with other companies during common hour.

Each member is required to work in the ROTC office one hour per week.

Miss Kustra is impressed with the group's unity. "The 12 Royal Green members had never met each other before and had little experience with using sabers in drill sequence. It is really great how well they get along and really work together."

"The Royal Green originally was a service organization, but then someone thought of the idea to drill with sabers in competition. Miss Kustra explained.

"The main thing I am scared of when marching is dropping my saber during the sequence. We are not allowed to pick it up and must continue through the rest of the sequence without it."

"The group would like to increase their membership from 12 to 25," Capt. Burdge said. "When we get more members some of the women will specialize in drill."

Drill competition is supervised by the ROTC. "The women's cadet corp competed for the first time at the Invitational Drill meet November 19 at Otterbein," Marjorie Parmenter, a senior in the College of Education and commander, said. Other meets are scheduled for later this year. Sgt. Thomas B. Woodward, a soph. in the college of Business Administration and member of the Pershing Rifles, assists Capt. Burdge at drill practice and will be commanding the Royal Green at the first drill meet.

Corporal Keith V. Mabbe, a soph. in the College of Business Administration assists at drill practice. Their drill sequence last six to eight minutes. They will be given voice commands for the first meet and after this they will go through the sequence by themselves."

The most difficult movement during the drill sequence is when the women form two lines and toss the sabers to each other.

Uniforms were designed by Royal Green members, and purchased with ROTC funds. However, the women's cadet corp has its own fund raising activities.

The name "Royal Green" was selected from a contest held within the cadet corp.

Merrily They March Along

When Come

By PAT LAMOND
Feature Writer

"Join the Navy and see the world" is a well-known slogan. But at the University the slogan can be changed to, "Join Angel Flight and see the country."

"I have travelled to Dallas, Washington, D.C., Michigan, and throughout Ohio and think that to be the greatest benefit of Angel Flight," Mary Jane Zothner, senior in the College of Education, said. Mary is a four year veteran of Angel Flight.

Earleen M. Dennis is local commander and drill commander for Angel Flight.

Sixteen of the 44 members in Angel Flight are on the drill team. However, Angel Flight does more than just march, said Miss Dennis. It helps with tours on campus, assisted in the blood drive in the Fall, sold programs for football games, sponsored a Halloween party for 25 Spanish-American children and sent Christmas gifts to Viet Nam.

"The purpose is to promote the Air Force on campus," Miss Dennis commented. "The Angels serve as hostesses for the AFOTC and also are taken to high schools with the AFOTC."

Three drill meets have also been planned this year for the drill team of Angel Flight.

"We will probably perform for high schools in the area and maybe during some basketball games," said Miss Dennis. "The drill team is a minor part of Angel Flight, but that is what has made us known nationally."

Participation in the drill team is voluntary, but if more than 16 to 20 women sign up, there is a tryout session.

The Angels Marching In

The uniforms for all the women of Angel Flight are furnished along with the rifles which are used at drill meets, said Miss Zothner. The uniforms cost about $42 each.

Miss Zothner is the area commander for the University of Michigan, Michigan State University, University of Akron, Kent State University, Case Institute of Technology, and the University.

Spring rush will begin Feb. 22 for interested freshman and sophomores with at least a 2.4 accumulative averages. The women will be selected from poise, enthusiasm, amount of available time to participate, and from an interview.

Meet Miami's Tate Locke

Taylor Locke

"FULL OF surprises" is the way Bowling Green coach Warren Scholler describes Miami's first-year coach Taylor ('Tate') Locke. "We never know what he's gonna do," says Scholler. "He might take the air out of the ball and just hold it -- we don't know." Well, it might not be that bad, but it's a sure bet that Locke will be out to up his 4-2 Mid-Am record and 9-7 overall slate. And obviously, it will have to come at the expense of Bowling Green tonight starting at 8 p.m. Locke took over the Redskin helm at the start of the 1966-67 season following the departure of Dick Shrider now the Miami athletic director.

Cage Poll To Continue

It's a new semester, and with it comes a brand new basketball poll for all our eager readers.

This week's panel features new names, new teams but the same old prize for winning: nothing.

Actually, the winner does get something when he (or she) manages to finish on top of the heap when it comes to predicting the outcomes of the week's competition. The person earns the right to return the following week to defend the title.

One exception is that sports editor Tom Hine will return each week, regardless of his record on the poll.

Twirling Hooper

NIAGARA FALLS (AP) -- Niagara University has a freshman basketball star, Calvin Murphy, who is averaging slightly better than 50 points a game. The youngster from Norwalk, Connecticut, is also rated as one of the best baton twirlers in the country and during the home season of the Buffalo Bills is part of the half-time entertainment.

Tennis Tryouts

Set Tomorrow

Tennis coach Robert Keefe has announced that all men interested in trying out for either the varsity or freshmen tennis teams should meet at 4:00 p.m. tomorrow in room 304 of the Men's Gym.

Gymnastics

Practice for the Men's Gymnastics Club has been re-scheduled for 5:15 p.m. daily in the Men's Gym.

Folley Clay's Next Opponent?

HOUSTON (AP)--Cassius Clay expects to meet Zora Folley next. Ernie Terrell is having an eye examination. English newspapermen and radio commentators were not overhappy about Clay's manners.

Those were just a few of the developments, following Clay's one-sided victory over Terrell Monday night in Houston.

The outcome was a clean-cut establishment of Clay as the undisputed heavyweight champion. Terrell had claimed the title in some areas.

But Clay easily scored a unanimous decision over Terrell with the loser heading for an eye specialist yesterday. Terrell said Clay had rubbed his right eye against the ropes and put his thumb in Ernie's left eye.

One English newspaper yesterday carried a headline which read "Ugly Venomous and Sickening."

British sports writers and broadcasters agreed that Clay had proven himself to be the world's best.

But they denounced as "arrogant and unsportsmanlike" the manner in which Clay taunted and humiliated his outclassed opponent.

Another English newspaper carried a headline reading "The Champ Of Sneer And Snarl."

Clay, was unmarked and obviously satisfied with himself one day after having disposed of Ernie Terrell in Houston. Clay talked about a trip to Mecca in two weeks, and a possible title fight with Zora Folley in ten weeks in either Detroit or New York.

Clay, said his manager, Herbert Muhammad, is talking with Folley's backers and with Canadian George Chuvalo's camp. He added that California heavyweight Thad Spencer also is on his list for a fight this year.

"I'll fight three in one night if they'll promote it," said Clay.

He said the trip to Mecca will be a pilgrimage made at the invitation of the king of Saudi Arabia.

The champion was told that Terrell is charging him with dirty tactics in last night's 15-round bout. Terrell, who was to see an eye specialist, charged that Clay had been guilty of flagrant fouls and had thumbed him in the left eye.

"He was fouling me. He hit me low 20 to 30 times and he hit me on the break ten times," answered Clay. "I am a clean fighter."

The champion declared that he was not sorry he had taunted Terrell by repeatedly asking, "What's my name?" during the eighth and ninth rounds. "I do what I want to do in the ring. There I'm the boss."

He explained that he considers Cassius Clay his slave name, and that he wants to be called Muhammad Ali, the name he adopted when he joined the Black Muslim sect.

Gugger's Retirement Spurs Successor's Praise

By TOM HINE
Sports Editor

There have been two people who have impressed me considerably since arriving on the Bowling Green campus a year and a half ago. One is a girl, but this is a sports column. The other is John Gugger.

He was the BG News sports editor for a year, but as of this semester has taken himself and his journalistic talents to Findlay. More money.

It's really no big thing.

Sports Editors have come, gone and will continue along the same route in the future, so who really cares about one named Gugger? YOU ought to.

Why you should care is something this reporter can't answer. It takes someone with a greater gift for writing to even approach the subject.

But speaking of gifted writers, that brings us back to Gugger.

You want some kind of idea as to how talented he was -- how he rates as a journalist?

You want a good idea of what kind of man your sports editor of a semester ago was?

Re-read his columns.

Re-read his final "One Man's Opinion" of Jan. 19, where he reviewed his year as head of the News' sports department.

Take another look at the article on Cassius Clay which appeared a year ago.

Reach back into the November issues of 1966 and again read a column he called "Wondering If . . ." and then begin wondering yourself if maybe the name John Gugger wasn't just another byline on the sports pages.

Read any of his accounts of BG games, from the tale of the emergence of a kid named Nytray (which incidentally was the same game the Falcons beat Miami this year in football) to his bitter blast at the basketball team after they blew a game to Kent last season.

Read these, others, any or all.

That'd be about as easy a way to get to know John's writing as any, but getting to know John the person is another problem.

He's got strong convictions and opinions, almost to the point of being stubborn. He rarely changes his mind ('cause you're never wrong, huh John?) and to tell you the truth, that about sums up my knowledge of Gugger.

He's a hard man to get to know, as you may gather.

But in the end, it's his writing that gets known anyway, and, admittedly, he gives a good impression.

By the way, if by some chance you aren't overly impressed with his work over the last two semesters, come into the News office and ask for me.

If you can do better, you've got yourself a job.

Facing The Falcons

Lucas

Foster

Snow

Miami carries the momentum into tonight's ball game as the Oxford five owns four victories in the last five clashes with Bowling Green.

The Redskin scoring department is anchored by letter winner Fred Foster, who, although shooting below his early season percentage, still leads the team with a 19.8 average. Another scoring threat from Oxfordtown is 5 foot 7 inch guard Phil Snow. Snow, who was benched early in the season, returned to action last week with 22 points against Xavier, and is a possible starter for tonight's clash.

Other possible starters for the Redskins will be Frank Lucas a 6-4 forward who has a scoring average of 9.3, Jerry Fisher 6-1 guard with a 8.1 point average, and Phil Stillings a 5-11 sophomore.

Falcon Victories Could Help Toledo

For Bowling Green State University's basketball squad, the thought is almost unbelievable but this could be the week that the Falcons help Toledo University.

The Falcons host Miami University tonight at 8 in Anderson Arena before traveling to Marshall University for a Saturday night contest.

Miami's Redskins and Marshall are currently one game behind Toledo's Rockets in the tightened Mid-American Conference race. If Bowling Green can gain wins over both Miami and Marshall, Toledo could rest a little bit more firmly on top of the loop.

Miami moves into Wednesday's game with a 9-7 mark and a 4-2 record in the league. Bowling Green, on the other hand, is now 9-8 overall and 3-3 in the MAC. But the Falcons have won their last games, and will be trying to reverse an earlier 70-62 loss at Withrow Court.

Bowling Green will be matching its high-scoring offense against a tough Miami defense that has held its first 16 opponents under a 60 point average. But that could be a real problem as the Falcons sport a 78.2 offense average.

Bowling Green is being paced by 6-8 forward Walt Piatkowski who is currently averaging 22.6 points a game and was the 38th leading scorer in the nation after last week's action.

He is also Bowling Green's 12th highest all-time career scorer with 827 points. Piatkowski didn't hurt himself against Ohio University as he fired in 31 points.

Miami is paced by 6-4 forward Fred Foster who is averaging 19.8 points a game. The Falcons assigned Al Dixon the job of guarding Foster when the two squads met at Miami, but this Wednesday the job will go to forward Joe Henderson.

Bowling Green and Miami have met 16 times at BG and the record currently stands at 8-8. This will mark the 34th meeting between the two schools with Miami holding a 20-13 edge in the series.

Bowling Green will move into the game seeking its fourth straight win. BG started its streak with a 70-62 win over Western Michigan before stopping Findlay and Ohio University by 104-98 and 82-79 counts.

After the Ohio University game, someone wisely suggested that the Falcons should televise all their games. On the MAC's

"Game-of-the-Week" series, the Falcons are currently 4-0 and Piatkowski, who always seems to turn in his best games during the "tube" series, is now averaging 30.2 points a game in front of the MAC cameras.

Tate To Tech

ATLANTA (AP) -- The Atlanta Journal says Charley Tate, the head football coach at the University of Miami in Florida, is certain to succeed Bobby Dodd as head coach at Georgia Tech. Dodd announced his resignation Monday but will remain at Tech as the Athletic Director.

Tate was contacted yesterday at Miami.

He says he has not been approached by Georgia Tech, but says he understands there has been some interest expressed in him.
